Aaron Chow focuses on complex commercial litigation, patent litigation, and intellectual property matters.

Aaron has experience with all phases of litigation, from initial pre-dispute investigation to discovery, depositions, and preparing for trial. He has represented clients on a wide range of matters involving pharmaceuticals, software, mobile devices, and semiconductors.

Aaron also maintains a strong pro bono practice, where he helped secure a large settlement on behalf of elderly clients facing housing discrimination in San Francisco's Chinatown. He has also assisted domestic violence victims and asylum seekers in need of legal aid.

Before joining Coblentz, Aaron was an associate at Morrison Foerster in San Francisco. He also served as a litigation extern for the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of New York and as a litigation paralegal with Ropes & Gray LLP.

Aaron earned his J.D. from New York University School of Law in 2024, where he was a Desmarais Law & Technology Scholar and co-chair of the Intellectual Property Society. He received his B.S. in Biology, cum laude, from the University of California, Los Angeles in 2019.
