Dan Bruggebrew is an experienced litigator who handles complex civil matters in federal, California state, and administrative courts, as well as an advisor and guide to individuals and companies navigating government inquiries, enforcement actions, internal investigations, and pre-litigation resolution of disputes.

Dan is a partner in the firm's Chambers-ranked White Collar Defense and Investigations group, where his government enforcement defense experience ranges from conducting internal investigations and managing responses to government investigations, to preparing clients and experts for deposition and testimony, to coordinating large individual- and multi-defendant litigation teams in discovery, motion practice, trial, and appeal. Most recently, Dan has been a key member of the trial team, including by taking trial testimony of a key government witness, defending against one of the largest regulatory enforcement actions in U.S. banking history.

In addition, Dan focuses on defending Bay Area employers in wage-and-hour class actions, including against representative claims under California's Private Attorneys General Act (PAGA), and in cases involving claims of discrimination, harassment, and retaliation.

Dan focuses his pro bono practice and community service on improving the lives of children. He obtained special immigrant juvenile ("SIJ") status and legal permanent residency for a Central American minor, and he represented amici curiae before the Supreme Court of California in support of another Central American minor seeking findings from a California family court in support of her own SIJ application. Dan is a Founding Member and Corporate Partnerships Co-Chair of the Young Professionals Council of the Okizu Foundation, the mission of which is to help all members of families affected by childhood cancer to heal through peer support, respite, mentoring, and recreational programs.

Prior to joining Coblentz, Dan was an associate at Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP and interim regulatory counsel at DoorDash. Before becoming a lawyer, Dan spent seven years as a transplant organ placement coordinator and served on the Ethics Committee of the United Network for Organ Sharing, the not-for-profit quasi-governmental administrator of the U.S. Organ Procurement and Transplantation Network.

Dan earned his J.D. from the University of California, Berkeley School of Law, where he was elected to the Order of the Coif, served as judicial extern to California Supreme Court Associate Justice Goodwin H. Liu, and received the Jurisprudence Award in Written & Oral Advocacy and the Prosser Prize in Professional Legal Ethics. Dan earned his M.S. from the College of Chemistry at the University of California, Berkeley. He earned his B.A., summa cum laude, with an independent concentration in bio-organic chemistry, from the University Professors Program at Boston University, where he was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa and was a Goldwater Scholar and a Beckman Scholar.
