Jon Bass brings the benefit of more than 40 years of high-stakes trial and appellate experience to the Firm's clients. He has represented the owners of professional sports teams in a range of contract, partnership, environmental, and tax matters, defended major real estate developers against challenges to their project approvals, served as counsel to national banks in numerous actions, and, more generally, represented both plaintiffs and defendants in a broad range of cases involving corporate, antitrust, real estate, eminent domain, and general business matters.

He also has successfully defended numerous development project approvals against challenges under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), as well as state and local land use laws.

Jon graduated cum laude from Yale University with a degree in Russian language and literature. He earned his law degree from the University of California, Berkeley School of Law in 1977 where he served on the editorial staff of the California Law Review and was elected to the Order of the Coif.

Notable Representations

Numerous successful defenses of major real estate development projects against challenges under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), as well as state and local land use laws.
