Philip Feffer focuses his practice on mergers and acquisitions, private equity fund formation, and general corporate representation. He also has experience in capital markets and strategic finance and lending matters.

Philip represents strategic and private equity clients in leveraged buyout, merger, and stock and asset purchase and sale transactions across multiple jurisdictions. His experience spans industries including chemicals, food and beverage, and manufacturing.

Philip also represents private fund clients in the formation and operation of private investment funds. He assists fund sponsors and investment professionals with the organization and documentation of internal firm arrangements and represents investors in the acquisition and disposition of private investment fund interests, both on a primary basis and in secondary market transactions.

Philip maintains an active pro bono practice. He advises various non-profit groups on a broad spectrum of legal issues and projects, and partners with pro bono organizations to represent low-income and disadvantaged individuals seeking permanent legal status in the U.S.

Philip earned his J.D. from Georgetown University Law Center in 2015. He received his B.A. from CUNY Hunter College in 2010.
